WILE SAYS:

Coolidge Silence
Scribes Ired
Spokesman Dies
Washington Notes

By FREDERICK WILLIAM WILE

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1927

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Calvin Coolidge's aversion to talk for publication has created a ferment among Washington's 500 newspaper correspondents, as the result of recent events at White House press conferences. The interesting question has arisen whether it is the privilege of the correspondents to report what is not said on those occasions, as well as to write about things that are discussed.

The whole controversy hinges upon interpretation of the rules under which the newspapermen obtain administration news and views on Tuesdays and Fridays. The official attitude is that when no answers are given to the written questions handed in for White House reply, correspondents are not entitled to deal with them in any form. In other words, it is held that when questions are ignored, the press is to consider that they were not even asked and abstain from any reference to them as far as the president is concerned.

Opinions Differ.

There are vigorous differences of opinion on the subject. Correspondents who disagree with the official view have, within the past few days, given vent to their opposition by disclosing in full detail the questions upon which White House information was rigorously withheld. They not only reproduced the questions thus ignored, but with equal emphasis, and in some cases, under big headlines, revealed how it had proved impossible to extort replies to them. Plaquancy is lent to the particular episode in question because it concerns the widely published reports that Mr. Coolidge, in 1912, signed a Massachusetts petition against third terms. One of the correspondents who took his courage in both hands and reported the White House's silence wrote that no fewer than twenty-seven questions on the subject were handed in, and, of course, went as many times unnoticed.

Rule Is Unofficial

Most Washington newspapermen who "cover" the semi-weekly press conferences have observed, whether they approved it or not, the rule that when no presidential utterance is made, none is to be reported. The rule, which came in with President Harding, is unwritten and informal, but has always been followed.

CALL OFF RACES

CLEVELAND, O., May 24.—Abandoning attempts to "test" Sheriff Ed Hanratty's "no-gambling" edict, at least for the present, the Ohio Jockey Club has called off the spring meeting at Maple Heights, which had been scheduled to start May 28. The club issued a statement, attributing the cancellation to "political" disruption which has raged in Cleveland and vicinity for the past three months.

CONSTITUTIONALITY OF MYERS ACT WILL BE CHALLENGED SOON

Foreign Insurance Companies Will Take Action—
Charge Act Is Confiscatory And Discriminatory.

COLUMBUS, O., May 24.—Indications today pointed to the filing of a suit, either in the Ohio Supreme Court or in the local Federal court, challenging the constitutionality of the Myers act, recently enacted by the Ohio Legislature, increasing the state excise tax upon the gross premiums of foreign insurance companies operating in Ohio from 2-1/2 to 3 per cent.

Governor Vic Donahey permitted the Myers act and the Dodd bill, providing for a six-tenths mill state direct tax levy, to become laws without his signature. The time limit for action by the governor on these measures expired at midnight Monday.

Addressing the governor during a hearing here Monday at which representatives of both foreign and domestic insurance concerns protested against the Myers bill, Judge Harry L. Conn and Attorney A. I. Vorys, both of Columbus, former state superintendents of insurance, charged that the bill is unconstitutional, confiscatory and discriminatory.

Judge Conn, as counsel for numerous insurance companies op-

DECISION BASED ON INFORMATION THAT POLICE UNCOVERED

Action Terminates Trade
Agreement Says
Premier

LONDON, May 24.—Great Britain has decided to sever diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia and to terminate the Anglo-Russian trade agreement, it was officially announced by Premier Baldwin in the house of commons this afternoon.

The premier's announcement was made during a statement upon the recent police raids on the headquarters of the Soviet trade delegation and Arcos Ltd., the private Russian trading organization in London.

These raids revealed that Arcos and the trade delegation have been habitually used as a clearing house for subversive correspondence, the premier stated.

The police and military, in collaboration, have been investigating for many months the activities of "armed agents," seeking to obtain confidential documents relating to the British armed forces, Baldwin stated. Inquiry showed that these agents were working on behalf of the Soviet government, the premier continued.

Evidence has been uncovered that one stolen document was reproduced by a photostatic process in the Soviet House, the premier said, and a British subject employed in the air forces has been convicted of stealing two military documents. This British subject was imprisoned after the stolen papers had been recovered from him.

WHITE HYDROPLANE BEARING COLORS OF FRANCE IS SIGHTED

Ship Could Not Be
Nungesser Plane Is Pointed Out

PARIS, May 24.—The Agence Fournier reports today that the captain of a fishing smack, arriving in Boulogne, has stated that his wireless operator picked up a message yesterday from the vessel St. Hubert, reporting having sighted a small vessel towing a white hydroplane with the French colors ten miles east of Start Point, southwest of Plymouth on the English coast.

The St. Hubert reported sighting the hydroplane in tow at 12:30 yesterday.

The reports from Boulogne were being investigated in Paris, but hopes that this might be Nungesser's plane were not great. Nungesser's plane was not a hydroplane. From the position and time of testing it is apparent that the plane was not Commander De Pinedo's. It was believed here that the plane may have been from one of the French naval air stations.

It shows the hotel at Le Bourget aerodrome, bathed by searchlight and surrounded by a milling crowd fighting to glimpse the American aviator. His plane may be seen silhouetted against the building. Under this telephoto picture is a view of Lindbergh shortly before he took off and a daylight picture of the hotel a few days before Lindbergh arrived. The plane in the latter picture is a Beriot-Spad, one of those that went up to greet him. Below is shown Lindbergh being greeted on his arrival in Paris by U. S. Ambassador Myron T. Herrick. The picture was sent by cable directly from Paris then by telephoto special to The Evening Gazette and The Morning Republican.

Lindbergh Frets Under Social Obligations

PARIS, May 24.—Social engagements claimed Captain Charles A. Lindbergh today, when that youth gave unmistakable indications that he would have preferred to have gone to Le Bourget field to work on the airplane which brought him across the Atlantic Ocean in a sole flight.

Lindbergh is going through with numerous social engagements, but he makes no pretense of hiding the fact that he is an airman and feels that he should be back at the field getting ready to take the air.

Minor repairs needed on "The Spirit of St. Louis" are being made and if Lindbergh has his own way he will probably be in the air again by Thursday or Friday, flying over Paris to "really see the town."

On Saturday he would like to fly to Brussels to accept an invitation from King Albert to be received at the Royal Palace there and from Brussels he would like to fly to England where a great reception is awaiting him, and where King George desires to greet him. Although he is reticent, it is plain that he is rather intrigued by these royal invitations, being rather curious to see just what a king is like.

Up to the present Lindbergh has paid little or no attention to the countless commercial offers which have flooded him, observing that he didn't fly across the ocean to make money but to "advance the cause of aviation," and he leaves the very definite impression that if he feels he has done something for aviation he is quite satisfied and won't worry about what he may get out of the venture personally.

The offers and invitations that have come to Lindbergh have been so numerous that proposals have been made that a board of managers be appointed for him to aid him in a business way. It has been suggested that three prominent and disinterested American residents of Paris be named to act as an advisory board to Lindbergh, and it may be that the young man will accept this proposal. He has leaned heavily on Ambassador Herrick up to the present for advice, as he realizes that his position is something of that of an ambassador and he wants to do those things that are expected of him.

But Lindbergh gets his greatest enjoyment out of talking over his flight with those who know aviation, and he was probably at his best yesterday when Alan Cobham the great English aviator, sat and chatted with him for a considerable time regarding things aerial and the possibilities of regular trans-Atlantic flights.

Lindbergh is staunch in his belief that trans-Atlantic aerial services can be maintained, but he frankly admits that as a commercial proposition flights as his are not to be considered as yet. He feels that heavier planes, probably tri-motored planes, must be developed capable of making the flight, before it can be regarded as a commercial project. He also has ideas about more certain weather reports. It will be something of a disappointment to Lindbergh if Commander Byrd does not attempt the New York-Paris flight, as he is rather anxious to watch the performance of this tri-motored heavy plane.

At noon today the American hero of the hour was the guest of the American Club at a luncheon at the Hotel Des Ambassadeurs and it hardly seems possible that he will be able to escape making a speech, an ordeal which he frankly dreads, as he declares he is not a speechmaker by trade.

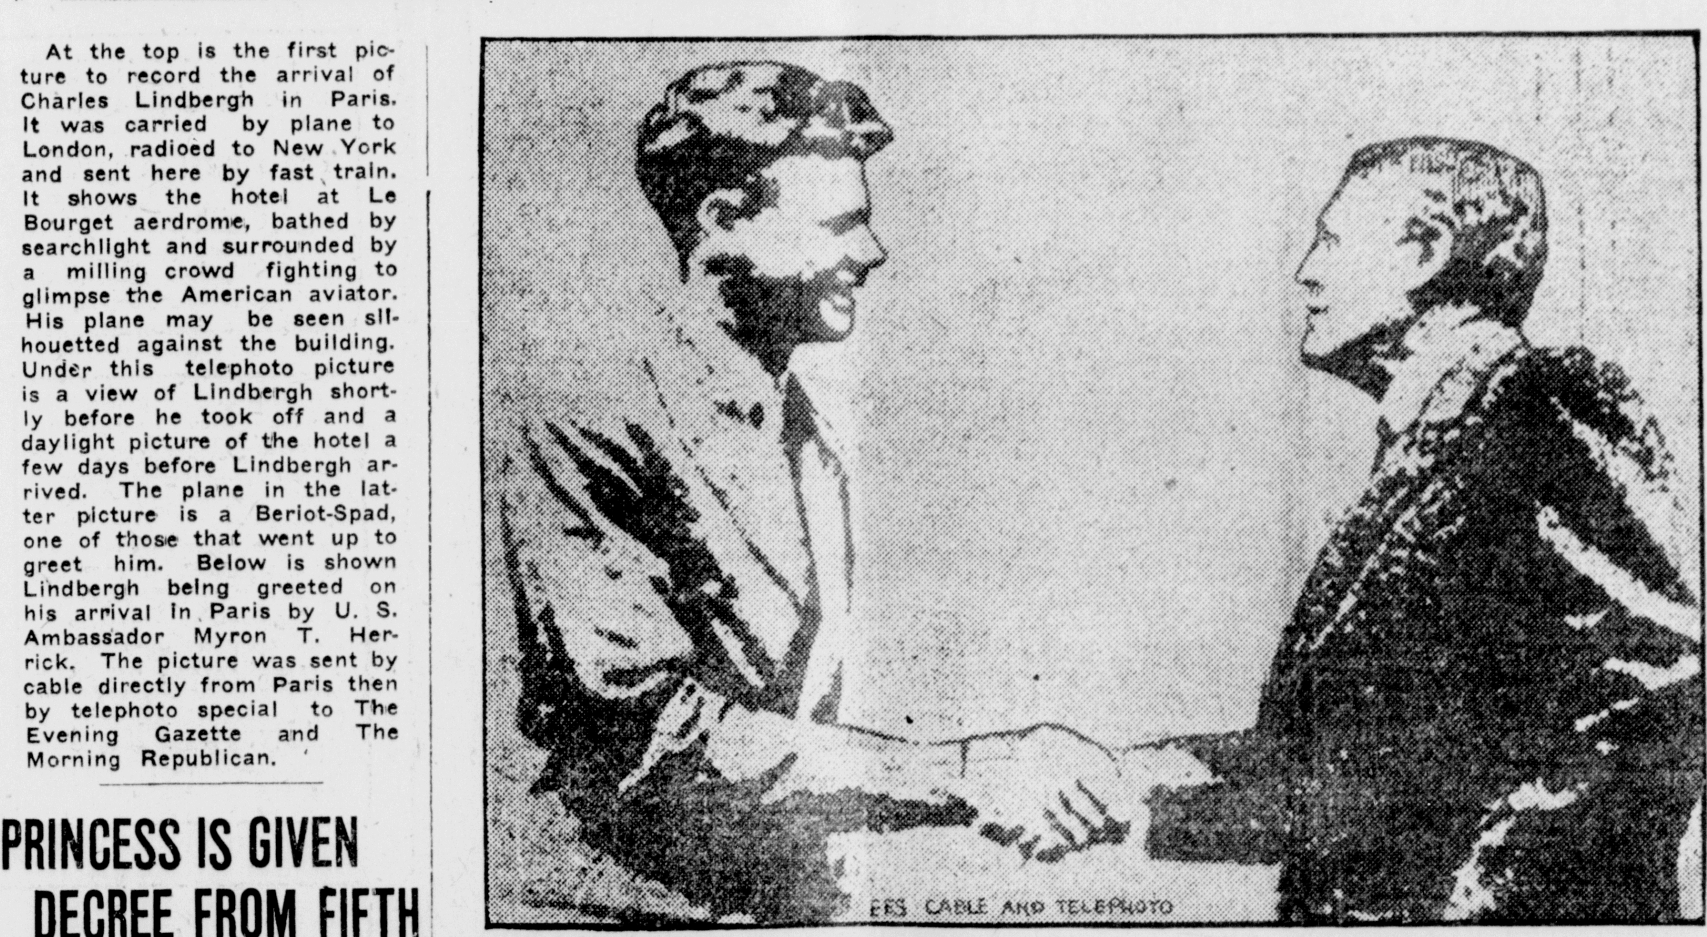

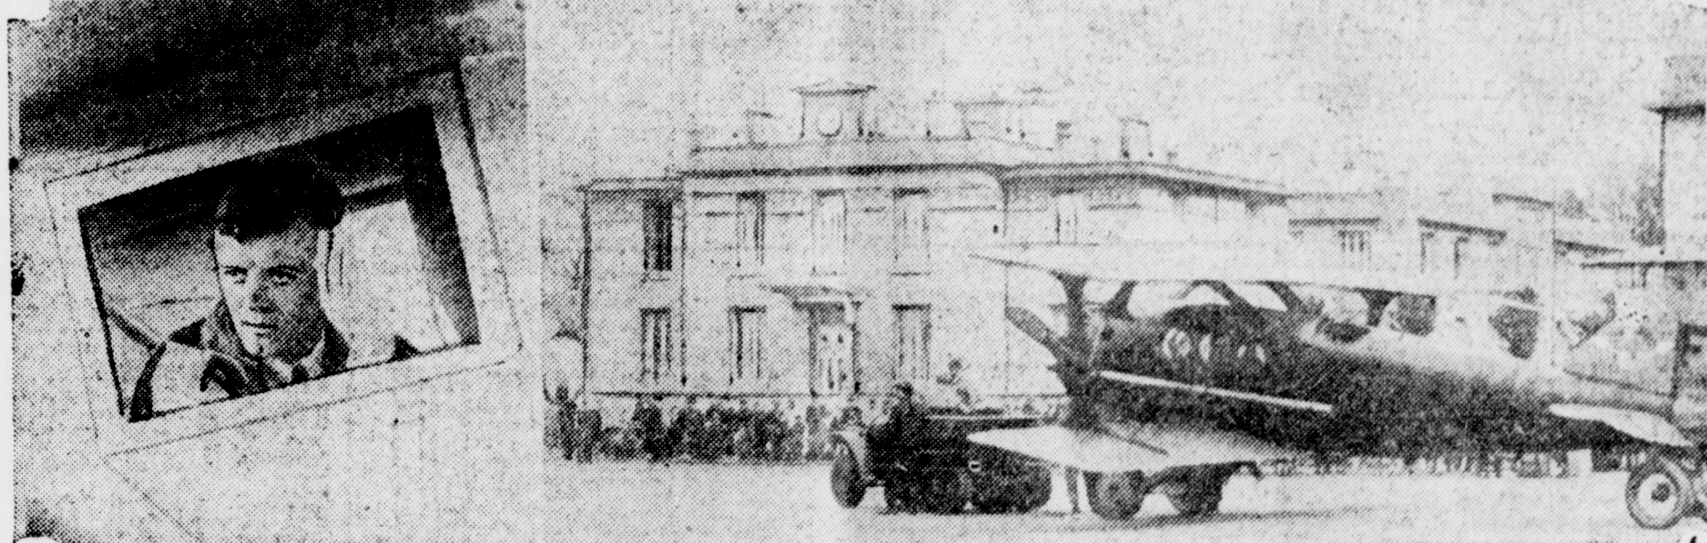

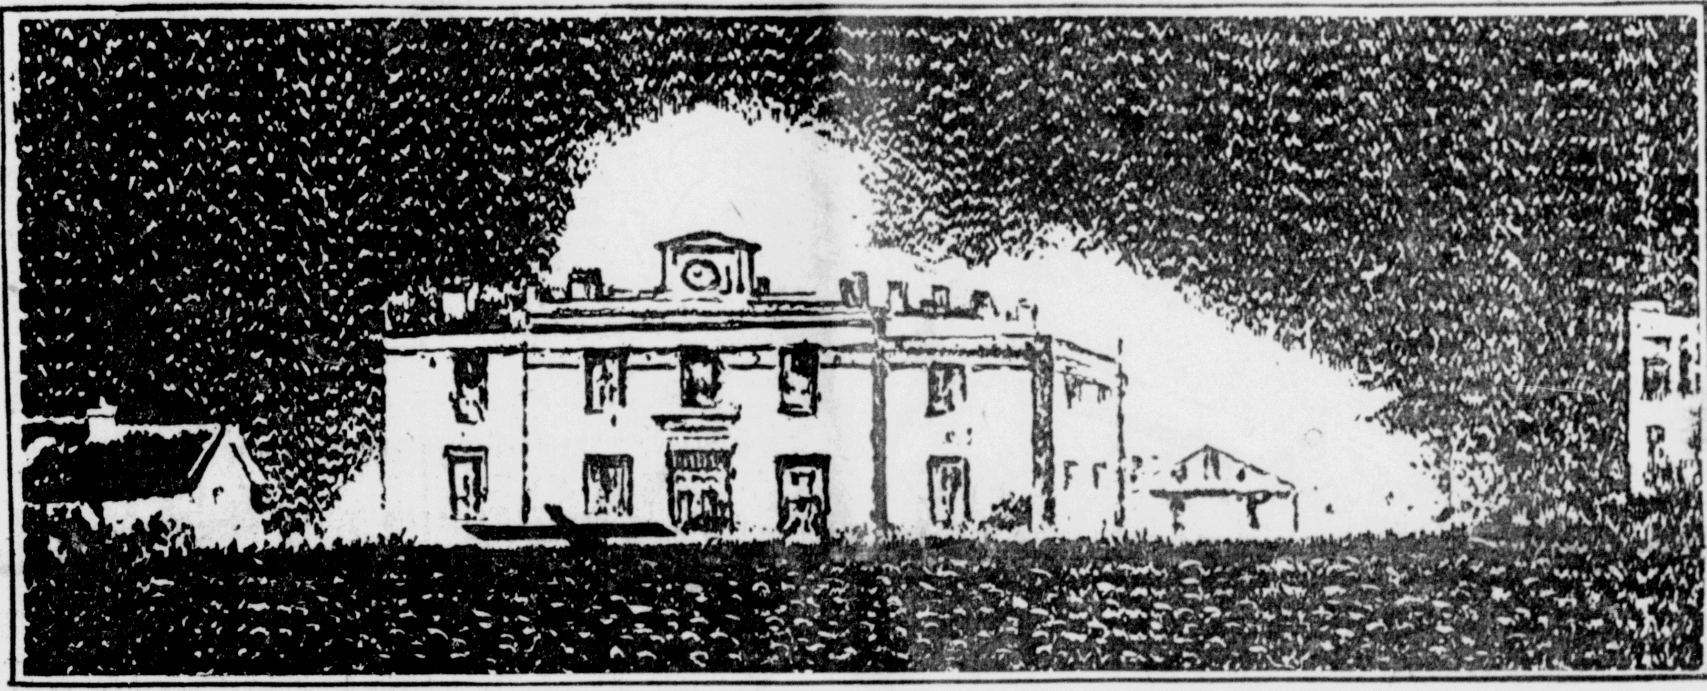

Late this afternoon the American is going to Le Bourget field to bid farewell to two French fliers who are hopping off in an attempt to make a two jump flight from Paris to Tokio.

Tonight Ambassador Herrick is giving a dinner for the young flier, and Lindbergh is looking forward to tomorrow when he will have lunch with Beriot, first man ever to fly across the English channel, a man whom Lindbergh regards as a great pioneer.

Tomorrow afternoon Lindbergh will be a guest of the Chamber of Deputies. On Thursday he will receive an official welcome from the city of Paris and will be entertained at luncheon by Foreign Minister Briand.

All these receptions and luncheons and dinners don't mean much to Lindbergh, who drinks not at all and eats sparingly, for he is anxious to get back to his own world of motors, planes, gasoline and oil.

It was decided to hold the banquet sometime during the week of June 13, probably on Wednesday, June 15, because it is believed this date will prove more satisfactory than June 23, when it was originally hoped to hold the affair.

For perfect tinting of dainty underwear, dresses, etc., the easiest way—and by far the best way—is the use of real dye. It tints in cold water, you know; just dip the garment and it takes whatever tinge you wish to give it. A matter of minutes.

Real dyes will get such smooth and even tones as shame the streaky, wishy-washy work of synthetic preparations for the purpose! Diamond dye in original powder form is only fifteen cents at the drug store. Do your own tinting. Then dip to tint—and you'll have an effect that's beautiful. And if you want the tint permanent, just use boiling water!

Diamond dyes do a perfect, "professional" job of dyeing, too; the druggist has sample shades and simple directions. For a book of endless suggestions, in full color, request a free copy of Color Craft of DIAMOND DYES, Dept. N32, Burlington, Vermont.

MAYOR PRUGH SPEAKS TO BOARD OF SOCIAL SERVICE LEAGUE

The Social Service League and, explained, and the Red Cross, the building and loan societies for large emergencies.

The speaker declared that Social Service work had its birth at the time of the Good Samaritan and started to function when Christ uttered the words, "Am I my brother's keeper?" "Social Service" should be the watchword in all things, he said and after commending the organization for its help to city officers, closed by reciting "The House By The Side Of The Road."

The meeting was the last of the executive board until September, the meetings being discontinued each year until fall. Mrs. Emma McCalmont, acting executive secretary, in the absence of Mrs. George C. Stokes, read Mrs. Stokes' report for April.

Forty-four families were given aid during the month, the report showed. Five transients were given help; grocery orders were given to five families, three families were given coal, three families, medical attention and eight families, milk.

Seven families were given household equipment, three, food in stock; twenty-seven, clothing and shoes, besides the number of cases of indigency. Forty-six persons and four organizations donated to the League during the month.

Miss Jennie Moffett, public health nurse, submitted her report, showing she had cared for twenty-six cases to date this month and twenty-three in April. She made 161 calls in April and 170 in May to date. She distributed seventy-five pages of literature in April and 174 in May.

Her marriage to S. B. Le Sourd took place March 20, 1876 at the old Jacoby homestead on the Springfield Pike. Following her marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Le Sourd made their home for two and one half years in Bethany, Butler County, and removed from there to Xenia in the fall of 1878, when Mr. Le Sourd became engaged in the insurance business in this city.

The celebration of their golden wedding, which took place March 30, 1926, was an occasion of great happiness for Mr. and Mrs. Le Sourd and their large circle of relatives and friends. Mr. Le Sourd's death occurred June 23, 1926.

Mrs. Le Sourd was a member of Trinity M. E. Church forty-eight years and was prominently identified with all of its activities. She was a member of the Women's Home Missionary Society, the Ladies' Aid and other organizations of the church. She was a devoted wife and mother and her home was always a center of happy home and social life.

Mrs. Le Sourd was the mother of five children three of whom survive her. They are Harry Le Sourd secretary of the Home Building and Savings Co., and member of the firm of S. B. Le Sourd and Co., Mrs. Milton McKay, of this city, and Mrs. Frank Dubois, of Warren Pa.

The only surviving member of Mrs. Le Sourd's father's family is her sister, Mrs. Lella A. Cooley, E. Second St. A niece, Mrs. Laura Alexander, has made her home with Mrs. Le Sourd for the last fourteen years.

Funeral services will be held at the Le Sourd home Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. Burial will be made in Woodland Cemetery.

Mother's Oats is approved by nutrition experts for another highly-important reason: it is a whole-grain food!

And how good it tastes! Always smooth and even-textured, always rich with the flavor only whole-grain foods have! For it is milled with painstaking care by millers who have had 50 years of experience.

HEALTH LESSONS TO ADD YEARS TO LIFE OF CHILDREN NOW

CLEVELAND, O., May 24.—Health instruction and physical exercise which have been made a part of present-day public school courses will enable the children of today to live approximately ten years longer than their parents.

This is the opinion of Dr. C. E. Turner, of Boston, following a survey in the schools here. Proper dieting and scientific physical development tend to iron out defects, particularly when applied to children, who bodies are still in the plastic stage, he pointed out.

"Ten years can be added to the lives of boys and girls of today through scientific health education in the schools and co-operation in the homes," Dr. Turner declared.

She was brought into Judge Finnegans court on a charge of driving while intoxicated. "Do you believe in the equality of the sexes?" his honor inquired, and Mrs. Parks answered, "Yes." "Twenty-five dollars" fine and thirty days in jail," remarked his honor. Mrs. Parks sat down and wept.

BIBLE THOUGHT

FOLIAGE AND FRUIT—I am like a green olive tree in the house of God; I trust in the mercy of God for ever and ever. I will praise thee for ever, because thou hast done it: and I will wait on thy name, Psalm 52:8, 9.

"BIG SHOW" FOR 1928

A number of cities are making strenuous efforts to obtain the Republican or Democratic national conventions next year and continue to present their claims to party leaders in one form and another. It is conceded that in public interest nothing approaches the proceedings of the bodies which place in nomination the four citizens who seek the highest offices in the gift of the American people.

Chicago is in the lists, as are Omaha, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Cleveland and Detroit, and each is driving hard to land the "big shows" of 1928. It is the "go getters" of the highest type to which the task has been assigned by each city, and members of the national committees of each great party are being made acquainted with the reasons why this or that city is better equipped than any other in the country to entertain the delegates and alternates, party leaders and party workers.

Cleveland, San Francisco, Chicago, Denver, Kansas City, St. Louis, Minneapolis tell what they have done in the way of playing host to the chiefs of the political parties. Detroit and Omaha with their records of conventions, other than a major national political gathering, present them and state what they are equipped to do on behalf of Republicans and Democrats. New York City does not appear to be an aspirant. It had the gathering that nominated Seymour and Blair in 1868 and the convention that nominated Davis and Bryan three years ago, and the metropolis seems to be content, for at least a while, to let other municipalities seek the honor.

WORK, NOT INSPIRATION

Irvin S. Cobb, whose humorous writing have been sending ripples of chuckles across America for a generation, has a grouch.

It is the modern young writer, who is impatient of sound literary training and who persists in his belief that the literary light is impelled by that elusive quality called inspiration.

Mr. Cobb unburies himself this wise:

"The two biggest fools in the writing game are the rebel, the iconoclast, the fiery spirit, the free and untrammelled soul who won't learn the rules that have been proved sound by generations of writers in the past; and the man who, having learned them, won't break them occasionally."

"But you can't break the rules intelligently without mastering them first, and knowing exactly when and why and how they should be broken to get a particular effect."

As to waiting for inspiration to guide the fingers over the typewriter keyboard, Mr. Cobb is very emphatic. "I never had an inspiration in my life," he declares. "I keep regular office hours for writing, and what I get are not inspirations but notions for yarns."

NOT SO VERY NEW

At the recent convention of the Missouri Hygiene Society held in St. Louis, the "fourteen points" necessary to secure mental health were emphasized by medical and biological. These points are as follows:

Direct the will, establish right habits, be calm, use self control, cultivate purposeful activity, be truthful, strive for self-realization, let day-dreams be purposeful, cultivate confidence, properly apportion work and play stress the good done rather than the bad, live one day at a time, be consistent, face the facts frankly.

But with all due respect, is not this advice just about as old as the very hills?

How to Achieve Beauty

KEEP THE TEXTURE OF YOUR HANDS SOFT AND WHITE

Yesterday I talked about hand beauty in general, and today I want to give you some helpful suggestions for keeping your hands and arms soft and white.

It is of particular importance just now, when the summer is just beginning, to keep your hands and arms in the best condition possible.

At this time of the year, with the very best aids in keeping your hands and arms in the best condition possible, you can have them in the best condition possible.

Take a fully ripened cucumber and cut it lengthwise in halves and rub it well over the hands. You will really be very much pleased with the results, especially if your hands show any tendency toward discoloration.

Hand texture that has become slightly roughened is often caused by the failure to dry the hands thoroughly. It is therefore very important to dry the hands well and to apply whenever possible a little of your favorite hand lotion.

Continued hard use of the hands will make them callous. For hands that are in this state, old-fashioned mutton tallow is a good remedy. Rub it into the skin of the hands and arms as often as possible while in season. Take a fully ripened cucumber and cut it lengthwise in halves and rub it well over the hands. You will really be very much pleased with the results, especially if your hands show any tendency toward discoloration.

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C. KELLY

ONE KIND OF MERIT TEST

I was in the office of a theatrical producer talking about plays of the past and present.

His reply was to press a button which rang a bell and summoned his secretary. He bade her bring certain records relating to the play mentioned.

"After carefully looking over these papers, he said:

"Yes, it was a good play—a very good play. We did about $28,000 a week gross."

What I had been wondering was whether the play was a well-constructed piece of playwriting with essential elements of conflict, suspense, character-drawing, wit and truth.

But my friend, the producer, was looking from another viewpoint and little suspected that there was anything humorous about his reply.

He, like nearly all theatrical producers, measures merit by results at the box office. If a play brings home the bacon it is an artistic triumph, a successful play, a good play.

Now, while we may laugh at a theatrical man for using dollars as a sole test of merit in a play, we probably fail to giggle at ourselves every day measuring success only by earning power.

I have in mind an inventor who has never made much money—simply because he would rather start on something new in his laboratory than to bother about introducing to the public useful devi-ces already completed. He derives more pleasure from his work itself than from the money his inventions might earn.

Yesterday I talked to a famous economist who has been uncannily accurate in predicting price movements in stocks and bonds.

"You must have made a fortune," I suggested.

"No," he replied, with a smile. "I'm probably crazy but I'd rather predict the market than to play it."

He becomes so interested in his work that he forgets all about the money-making possibilities of the knowledge of gains.

Is his life a failure?

He suggested.

"No," he replied, with a smile. "I'm probably crazy but I'd rather predict the market than to play it."

MAKING MODERN MENUS

PECAN CINNAMON ROLLS

One pint milk, half cup butter, three-fourths cup sugar, two eggs, one yeast cake, flour, one teaspoon salt, two cups brown sugar, two tablespoons cinnamon, one-third cup butter, one-third cup water, half cup pecan nuts, chopped.

Sauté the milk, add fat and sugar. Pour the mixture into a bowl, add two well-beaten eggs and enough flour to make a sponge. Crumb the yeast and put into a cup with one-half cup luke warm water. When the sponge is luke warm add the yeast to it; let rise, beat down, let rise again, beat down, and add enough flour to knead, let rise.

Mix the brown sugar, cinnamon, butter and water, and heat until the sugar is dissolved. Cool mixture. When the dough is very light roll it out to one-half inch thickness, spread with the cooled sugar mixture and sprinkle with the nuts. Roll the dough-as for a jelly roll and cut one-inch slices. Place slices with cut edge on bottom of well-oiled muffin pan; let rise and bake in a moderate oven thirty minutes. This makes three dozen rolls.

"The home is best described in terms of a garden. It is a garden that fully meets the physical, mental, moral and social needs of growing children. The training there should teach them to be independent and self-propelled. There comes a time when they have to live their own lives, and our business as fathers and mothers is to train them to be able to propel themselves in the right direction."

—Willard E. Givens.

"We have been living in an atmosphere of irresponsibility—shown in our attitude toward marriage, divorce, the rearing of our children. And the ill effects are repeated in our youth. Young women of today take the attitude that the same things apply to them as to their brothers."—Mrs. J. Lester Lewine.

"Neither the most rabid New Yorker nor the wildest southern dry are utter fools. People in every section, wet, dry, north, south, east and west, are remembering the simple fact that the laws of the United States are made by congress and not by the candidate for president nor the president himself."—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. It is a "Phillips." Twenty-five and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

With the permission of the weather man to stage nine frames of ball Sunday, Bowersville put one more on the right side of the ledger, by defeating the Modern Woodmen of Dayton at Waynesville, 6 to 4.

Cox, third baseman for the Bayliffs, lead the hitting with two doubles and a single in five times up, and scoring two runs himself. Haughey and D. Murrell each got a double. Palmer, of Dayton, playing shortstop for Bowersville, was a valuable asset to the Bayliffs. His hitting and fielding was high class and his single to right in the third drove in two runs. Again in the sixth he sent one more across with a single.

Pitcher Blue hurt his arm in the second inning and was forced to retire at the end of the third. Kersey went to the mound in the fourth and pitched a nice game, allowing but two hits in five innings.

In the fifth the first two men got on, then Kersey cut loose retiring the side on strike outs. He will be retained as one of the Bayliff hurlers.

The Woodmen scored two runs in the third on five hits. In the seventh Sharp left off with a double, and a base on balls and a triple were good for two more runs. This was Kersey's only lead down. Only seven men faced him in the eighth and ninth innings and he struck out four of them.

Bowersville will play at Jamestown Sunday May 29. Game called at 3 p. m. Summary:

DOES JOB HIMSELF

Harry Weber can lay claim to being the most ambitious among the rural mail carriers working out of the Xenia Post office.

Mr. Weber took it upon himself to personally paint the 154 mail boxes along his route a white color, and not only that, but also inscribed the names of the patrons on the various boxes.

Postmaster C. S. Frazer declares residents on rural routes should perform this task instead of the carriers.

DURNBAUGH STILL LEADING RESERVE ARTILLERY AT BAT

Computing all of the four games played by the Xenia Reserves this season, instead of the three league games only, terrific hitting of Durnbaugh in each of the four contests, enabled the slugger to continue to set the pace among the Reserve hitters with the remarkable average of .547. Adding two more safeties Sunday, Durnbaugh has made eleven hits in seventeen times at bat and has also scored seven runs himself, more than any other individual on the team.

Reserves are hitting at the rate of .360, a wonderful team batting average; have made forty-nine hits, an average of twelve per game, and scored thirty-nine runs, an average of ten per game. Batting averages follow:

CONSTABLES FOUND GUILTY OF CHARGE

Constables Earl Severs and W. J. Sidwell, Dayton, known as the "raiding twins" because of their activities in liquor law enforcement, were found guilty of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act on three counts in federal court, Dayton, Monday. They will be sentenced May 31. The maximum penalty is imprisonment two years and $10,000 fine each. Both are known here, having participated in raids in Bath Twp.

QUOIT CONTEST IS WASHED OUT BY RAIN

A heavy downpour of rain that soon placed the grounds in an impossible playing condition, forced postponement of the scheduled Miami Valley Quoit League match between the Xenia Quoit Club and Shrine Club of Dayton, in Xenia Monday night.

It was the first postponement of the season due to inclement weather. The match will probably be played off sometime later in the week.

Several of the Dayton players appeared on the grounds, having not been previously notified the match had been cancelled.

JURY CONSIDERS FATE OF FILM HERO

Superior Judge Charles S. Burrell has prepared his charge for reading when the trial resumes this morning. The case will then go to the jury.

POSTMASTER ENDS ANNUAL SURVEY OF RURAL POST ROUTES

Postmaster C. S. Frazer recently completed his semi-annual survey of the 1,304 letter boxes along the eight rural mail routes over the county, taking several weeks to complete the task.

Under an order which went into effect February 15, the number of rural routes was reduced from ten to eight for purposes of economy, cutting the total mileage to 269.15 miles.

All boxes were found by the postmaster to be generally in good condition. The total number of rural boxes serve 1,355 families and 5,533 individual patrons, he says.

Postmaster Frazer also noted on his inspection trip that the roads along the designated routes were also in good shape except in scattered spots.

The shortest rural route in the county is 26.6 miles long and the longest is 33.6 miles in length.

SIXTEEN VETERANS HONORED BY ROTARY

Sixteen of the twenty-one veterans of the Civil War in the county, were guests of the Xenia Rotary Club, at the luncheon meeting at the Elks' Club, Tuesday.

The aged veterans were graciously entertained by the club members and at the close of the luncheon, F. L. Smith, president of the Rotarians, delivered an appropriate address to the veterans.

They were escorted by their hosts to the O. S. and S. O. Home where the battalion staged a dress parade in their honor.

"I am the mother of three very healthy, strong children. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription during each of my expectant periods and it kept me in fine physical condition. I was so well and my nerves were in such good shape that I was around doing all my work, never suffering any distress or bad feeling at any time and I had practically no suffering. I would not think of going through expectancy without taking the 'Favorite Prescription.'" (Signed—Mrs. Joseph DeSorbes, 33 Gary St., Ashtabula, Ohio, all druggists.)

The Theatre

By FLEET SMITH

What man today hasn't heard of Clara Bow and how many of them are not aware of the fact that she has "it" whatever it is. The amount of "it" that a screen actress has is best gauged by the number of men who buy tickets. But there are different kinds of "it." Alma Rubens has a great appeal as has Pola Negri, but it is a different appeal. I am told that Clara Bow appears in pictures without make-up and I have no reason to doubt this since I have seen her working without the artificial get-up usually required.

With the growth and advancement of film making the art of make-up for the screen has really become a science. James Collins, director of the make-up department of the Paramount studios at Hollywood, who has been "making over" faces for more than fifteen years has turned his department into a laboratory where even scientific terms are used. Recently he announced a new discovery which he calls "facial geometry." It is really a development more than a discovery.

Collins, naturally, would not detail his process, but he did tell how a geometrical line of purple paint would make a round jaw photograph square, thus making a weak face strong. A small red triangle, for instance, on the lids will arch

It is our own impression that the best "make-up" women are in New York, but the prettiest, naturally, are found in Southern California. But that is an endless discussion.

ways been held to bind all the men and women who visit the White

House for news purposes. Yet it commonly happens that official silence on a given subject is more golden, from a "news" standpoint, than discussion of it might be. It is on such occasions that some of the correspondents feel themselves entitled to print exactly what happened. They do not admit that in doing so, they are guilty of any breach of faith or violation of the rules. They contend that they are not misquoting anybody, but merely confining themselves to a legitimate statement of facts. Frequently they are carrying out specific orders, known in the profession as "queries," from their home offices.

Difficult to Quote Authority

The present tempest in the journalistic teapot probably will subside without casualties on either side, as other storms of the kind during the Coolidge administration have blown over. But the newest incident undoubtedly adds something to the dissatisfaction which periodically crops up among reporters of White House news. In just what form or language, for example, officially communicated information is now to be used, has once again become a moot question. About a month ago newspapers throughout the country reported the official demise of the anonymous and nationally-celebrated character known as "the White House spokesman." A few Washington correspondents have revived that "spokesman" and quote him indirectly, as before. But for the most part that description of the executive oracle has been dropped. Meantime capital scribes are in a quandary just how to identify, as they feel it necessary to do, the source of administration news. Such hackneyed phrases as "well-informed circles," "official quarters," "a high government authority," etc., do not, in the opinion of experienced Washington writers, fill the bill. Such expressions too often in the past were the cloaks under which unauthorized and inaccurate federal information reached the American public.

Coolidge Insists on Anonymity.

Ever and anon President Coolidge is urged to consider the advisability of direct quotation as the most natural and effective manner of placing himself, day by day,

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

Both Anne Tracy and Mr. Jones, who is the Tracy's milkman, object to the engagement of Phillip Wynne Tracy IV and Natalie Jones.

Phillip's mother plans to interest her son in other girls and decides to give him a party. She tells him about the impending visit of her old friend, Mrs. Hillard, and arouses his interest in the woman.

After the first kiss Phillip only lives to be near Lynn Hillard.

At the party Natalie overhears Phillip making love to Mrs. Hillard and breaks her engagement. She refuses to be even friends and tells Rodney Maxwell all about it.

On a midnight ride Lynn confesses her love for Phillip.

He sends her a passionate love poem which his mother finds. Lynn and Mrs. Tracy have it out. The whole affair, however, sinks into nothingness because war is declared. Rod and Phillip enlist together.

Natalie tells Rod she is glad he is going with Phil and breaks his heart. Lynn writes a cruel letter to Phillip and leaves without seeing him. She also says good-bye to Mrs. Tracy by letter.

Natalie visits Mrs. Tracy and Phil's mother tells her "I am sending him to war to save him for you."

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XXIII

LYRA BIDS ANNE FAREWELL. NATALIE JONES looked surprised at Mrs. Tracy's confession.

From it she knew that in some way she had learned about Wynne and Lynn, but with the reticence which women always show toward one another over those things which lie nearest to them, she asked no questions and Mrs. Tracy made no explanation. Neither did she ask her to come and see her when Wynne had gone. It seemed to the girl that she would not allow herself to think of that time. However, she kissed her tenderly as she bade her good-bye.

Natalie got out of the room as soon as possible after Mrs. Tracy kissed her. She felt the tears welling up into her eyes and was determined not to cry before Wynne's mother.

As soon as she had gone Anne Tracy rang for Nonnie, and when her maid appeared she asked, "Has Mrs. Hillard had breakfast yet?"

"Yes, Mrs. Tracy; I think she got it downtown or on the train."

"What do you mean, Nonnie? Mrs. Hillard has not left the house has she?"

"Yes, Mrs. Tracy. She told me to tell you that because of the declaration of war she had determined to return home immediately. She said that she knew her husband would want her with him, as he would probably wish to place his big cotton mills and their home at the disposal of the government. She particularly requested that we would make no noise to awaken you and finally gave me this note for you."

Anne Tracy took the note as though it burned her and laid it on the table.

Her maid, she knew, was very curious about what had happened, for she busied herself with little things about the room until her mistress said to her, "That will do, Nonnie. I am going out shortly and then you can finish up here. Has Mr. Phillip gone out?"

"Yes, Mrs. Tracy."

"Well, I'll call you if I want you before I leave the house."

The moment she was alone Anne Tracy picked up Lynn Hillard's note and read.

"I am leaving this morning, dear Anne, without seeing you."

"It is very probable that you will resent this, as you will resent my calling you 'dear Anne'."

"I want you to know, however, that in both directions without personally bidding you good-bye and calling you 'dear,' my motive is perfectly sincere."

"It would do neither of us any good for you to see me again until you had gotten over your surprised shock at my actions and until you could realize that a person might do something that would hurt another grievously and yet love her very dearly. I could never make you believe that you are really dear to me."

"It is all in the point of view. Anne, and ours are as far apart as the poles."

"You think I have scarred your son's soul. I think I have done him no harm except in leaving him."

"I am the one who suffers most, for I really care for Wynne. He is a wonderful youth—a son of whom you may be proud."

"It almost broke my heart to write him the letter I did this morning. However, some day, after the storm and stress of life which the years will bring him, he will remember it with kindness, if not satisfaction, and in this, dear Anne, is a truth that most of us would forget if we could. Men remember the pleasure longer than the pleasure giver. That's not an original opinion of mine, but one that has come down the ages from a very celebrated Grecian philosopher and has been proven since by the world of men of every country and in every clime.

"There must be something in friendship that is greater than all this mushy love between a man and woman."

"The only regret that I have, Anne, is that I have, by leaving Wynne before he tried of me—for he would have tried—made him for the time being hate all women."

"Of course I shall always have a poignant sorrow—after today I will never be able to sign a letter to you 'your sincere loving friend.'"

"I can see your lips curl scornfully as you read the above, but nevertheless, dear Anne, truthfully I can still sign myself,

"Your sincere, loving friend,"

"Lyra."

ANNE HUNTINGTON TRACY quietly laid that frank letter down and wondered how there could be such women in the world—women who deceived themselves with plausible excuses.

Not for one moment did she doubt Lynn Hillard's sincerity, but she marveled at her perverted mind.

With a sigh she looked the letter in a private drawer in her secretary and tried to tell herself that whatever came, Lynn Hillard would henceforth be dead to her.

In his own mind he had determined to say nothing about the tragic ending of his first love. But the moment Rod looked at his face he knew that something momentous had happened to his friend.

Naturally, his first thought was of Natalie, and he asked, "Have you seen Nat since you enlisted?"

"No."

"Is your mother going to give her consent to your going?"

"Of course she is."

"Well, then, what's the matter? Are you sorry you signed up?"

"Certainly not. Do you think I can change my mind as quickly and easily as a woman?"

"If I had not enlisted yesterday I would do so today. You and I, Rod, should be thankful that we live at a time that will give us the greatest thrill that has ever come to men in any age. Men must fight to prove themselves men."

"But what of the women they leave behind?" asked Rodney, still thinking of the grief-stricken face of Natalie as he had seen it last.

"Oh, women!" answered Phillip, as if they were not worth considering. "I fancy there will always be enough males who call themselves men who will stay at home merely to console them."

"Do you think that any other man will be able to console your mother, Wynne?" asked Rodney.

Phillip's tense face broke up, its hard lines became soft and boyish, a tear rolled down his cheek.

"Mothers are different, Rod," he said. "When a woman has a baby

WILE SAYS:

Coolidge Silence
Scribes Ired
Spokesman Dies
Washington Notes

By FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1927

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Calvin Coolidge's silence has created a ferment among Washington's 500 newspaper correspondents, as the result of recent events at White House press conferences. The interesting question has arisen whether it is the privilege of the correspondents to report what is not said on those occasions, as well as to write about things that are discussed. The whole controversy hinges upon interpretation of the rules under which the newspapermen obtain administration news and views on Tuesdays and Fridays. The official attitude is that when no answers are given to the written questions handed in for White House reply, correspondents are not entitled to deal with them in any form. In other words, it is held that when questions are ignored, the press is to consider that they were not even asked and abstain from any reference to them as far as the president is concerned.

Opinions Differ.
There are vigorous differences of opinion on the subject. Correspondents who disagree with the official view have, within the past few days, given vent to their opposition by disclosing in full detail the questions upon which White House information was rigorously withheld. They not only reproduced the questions thus ignored, but with equal emphasis, and in some cases, under big headlines, revealed how it had proved impossible to extort replies to them. Piquancy is lent to the particular episode in question because it concerns the widely published reports that Mr. Coolidge, in 1912, signed a Massachusetts petition against third terms. One of the correspondents who took his courage in both hands and reported the White House's silence wrote that no fewer than twenty-seven questions on the subject were handed in, and, of course, went as many times unanswered.

Rule Is Unofficial
Most Washington newspapermen who "cover" the semi-weekly press conferences have observed, whether they approved or not, the rule that when no presidential utterance is made, none is to be reported. The rule, which came in with President Harding, is unwritten and informal, but has always been followed.

CALL OFF RACES

CLEVELAND, O., May 24.—Abandoning attempts to "test" Sheriff Ed Hanratty's "no-gambling" edict, at least for the present, the Ohio Jockey Club has called off the spring meeting at Maple Heights, which had been scheduled to start May 28. The club issued a statement, attributing the cancellation to "political" disruption which has raged in Cleveland and vicinity for the past three months.

CONSTITUTIONALITY OF MYERS ACT WILL BE CHALLENGED SOON

Foreign Insurance Companies Will Take Action—
Charge Act Is Confiscatory And
Discriminatory.

COLUMBUS, O., May 24.—Indications today pointed to the filing of a suit, either in the Ohio Supreme Court or in the local Federal court, challenging the constitutionality of the Myers act, recently enacted by the Ohio Legislature, increasing the state excise tax upon the gross premiums of foreign insurance companies operating in Ohio from 2 1/2 to 3 per cent.

Governor Vic Donahey permitted the Myers act and the Dodd bill, providing for a sixteenth mill state direct tax levy, to become laws without his signature. The time limit for action by the governor on these measures expired at midnight Monday.

DECISION BASED ON INFORMATION THAT POLICE UNCOVERED

Action Terminates Trade
Agreement Says
Premier

LONDON, May 24.—Great Britain has decided to sever diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia and to terminate the Anglo-Russian trade agreement, it was officially announced by Premier Baldwin in the house of commons this afternoon.

The premier's announcement was made during a statement upon the recent police raids on the headquarters of the Soviet trade delegation and Arcos Ltd., the private Russian trading organization in London.

These raids revealed that Arcos and the trade delegation have been habitually used as a clearing house for subversive correspondence, the premier stated.

The police and military, in collaboration, have been investigating for many months the activities of "armed agents," seeking to obtain confidential documents relating to the British armed forces, Baldwin stated. Inquiry showed that these agents were working on behalf of the Soviet government, the premier continued.

Evidence has been uncovered that one stolen document was produced by a photostatic process in the Soviet House, the premier said, and a British subject employed in the air forces has been convicted of stealing two military documents. This British subject was imprisoned after the stolen papers had been recovered from him.

White Hydroplane
Bearing Colors of France Is Sighted

Ship Could Not Be
Nungesser Plane Is Pointed Out

PARIS, May 24.—The Agence Fournier reports today that the captain of a fishing smack, arriving in Boulogne, has stated that his wireless operator picked up a message yesterday from the vessel St. Hubert, reporting having sighted a small vessel towing a white hydroplane with the French colors ten miles east of Start Point. Start Point is about twenty miles southwest of Plymouth on the English coast.

The St. Hubert reported sighting the hydroplane in tow at 12:30 yesterday.

The reports from Boulogne were being investigated in Paris, but hopes that this might be Nungesser's plane were not great. Nungesser's plane was not a hydroplane. From the position and time given it is apparent that the plane was not Commander De Pinedo's. It was believed here that the plane may have been from one of the French naval air stations.

Conceding in this state, announced today that conferences will be held soon, attended by representatives of various insurance companies at which a plan of action will be agreed upon.

Gov. Donahey's action, "only one course of action is open—that of testing the constitutionality of the Myers bill," he said the suit could be filed either in the state supreme court or in the federal court.

LEVEE GIVES AWAY
ALONG SUGAR BOWL

NEW ORLEANS, May 24.—The Atchafalaya levee at McCrea, on the east bank of that swollen stream, gave way shortly before dawn today. In a few hours there was a crevasse 750 feet wide, and the whole eastern section of the "sugar bowl" will be flooded.

The west bank levees of the Mississippi now are threatened as a result of the McCrea break.

Lindbergh Frets Under Social Obligations

PARIS, May 24.—Social engagements claimed Captain Charles A. Lindbergh today, when that youth gave unmistakable indications that he would have preferred to have gone to Le Bourget field to work on the airplane which brought him across the Atlantic Ocean in a sole flight.

Lindbergh is going through with numerous social engagements, but he makes no pretense of hiding the fact that he is an airman and feels that he should be back at the field getting ready to take the air.

Minor repairs needed on "The Spirit of St. Louis" are being made and if Lindbergh has his own way he will probably be in the air again by Thursday or Friday, flying over Paris to "really see the town."

On Saturday he would like to fly to Brussels to accept an invitation from King Albert to be received at the Royal Palace there.

And from Brussels he would like to fly to England where a great reception is awaiting him, and where King George desires to greet him. Although he is reticent, it is plain that he is rather intrigued by these royal invitations, being rather curious to see just what a king is like.

Up to the present Lindbergh has paid little or no attention to the countless commercial offers which have flooded him, observing that he didn't fly across the ocean to make money but to "advance the cause of aviation," and he leaves the very definite impression that if he feels he has done something for aviation he is quite satisfied and won't worry about what he may get out of the venture personally.

The offers and invitations that have come to Lindbergh have been so numerous that proposals have been made that a board of managers be appointed for him to aid him in a business way. It has been suggested that three prominent and disinterested American residents of Paris be named to act as an advisory board to Lindbergh, and it may be that the young man will accept this proposal. He has leaned heavily on Ambassador Herrick up to the present for advice, as he realizes that his position is something of that of an ambassador and he wants to do those things that are expected of him.

But Lindbergh gets his greatest enjoyment out of talking over his flight with those who know aviation, and he was probably at his best yesterday when Alan Cobham, the great English aviator, sat and chatted with him for a considerable time regarding things aerial and the possibilities of regular trans-Atlantic flights.

Lindbergh is staunch in his belief that trans-Atlantic aerial ser-

VICES can be maintained, but he frankly admits that as a commercial proposition flights as his are not to be considered as yet. He feels that heavier planes, probably tri-motored planes, must be developed capable of making the flight, before it can be regarded as a commercial project. He also has ideas about more certain weather reports. It will be something of a disappointment to Lindbergh if Commander Byrd does not attempt the New York Paris flight, as he is rather anxious to watch the performance of this tri-motored heavy plane.

At noon today the American hero of the hour was the guest of the American Club at a luncheon at the Hotel Des Ambassadeurs and it hardly seems possible that he will be able to escape making a speech, an ordeal which he frankly dreads, as he declares he is not a speechmaker by trade.

Late this afternoon the American is going to Le Bourget field to bid farewell to two French fliers who are hopping off in an attempt to make a two jump flight from Paris to Tokio.

Tonight Ambassador Herrick is giving a dinner for the young flier, and Lindbergh is looking forward to tomorrow when he will have lunch with Herriot, first man ever to fly across the English channel, a man whom Lindbergh regards as a great pioneer.

Tomorrow afternoon Lindbergh will be a guest of the Chamber of Deputies. On Thursday he will receive an official welcome from the city of Paris and will be entertained at luncheon by Foreign Minister Briand.

All these receptions and luncheons and dinners don't mean much to Lindbergh, who drinks not at all and eats sparingly, for he is anxious to get back to his own world of motors, planes, gasoline and oil.

At noon today the American hero of the hour was the guest of the American Club at a luncheon at the Hotel Des Ambassadeurs and it hardly seems possible that he will be able to escape making a speech, an ordeal which he frankly dreads, as he declares he is not a speechmaker by trade.

Late this afternoon the American is going to Le Bourget field to bid farewell to two French fliers who are hopping off in an attempt to make a two jump flight from Paris to Tokio.

Tonight Ambassador Herrick is giving a dinner for the young flier, and Lindbergh is looking forward to tomorrow when he will have lunch with Herriot, first man ever to fly across the English channel, a man whom Lindbergh regards as a great pioneer.

WIRELESS MESSAGE SAYS FLYER FORCED DOWN NEAR AZORES

MONTREAL, May 24.—Commander De Pinedo has been forced down at sea and his seaplane is being towed by a schooner, according to a message received here today from the S. S. Providence.

The Providence reported that De Pinedo's seaplane in tow was sighted 240 miles from Flores, the Azores.

Lloyd's Register gives three steamers named Providence. One of these is an American coastal steamer. Another is of French registry and the third is of Norwegian registry.

LONDON, May 24.—Advices to Lloyd's marine agency this morning indicated that Commander Francesco De Pinedo, the Italian trans-Atlantic flyer, has been forced down a few miles off the Azores.

A dispatch from the liner Aquitania said that a schooner was towing an unidentified airplane into an Azores port, but it was not positively identified as De Pinedo's.

The radiogram from the Aquitania to Lloyd's follows:
"The steamship Off Field reporting her position as latitude 41.6 longitude 33.9 signalled that she had sighted a three masted schooner towing an airplane eastward.
"The steamship hailed the schooner but, owing to darkness, could not get any details. The steamer continued on her course. The plane is believed to have been a double motor monoplane with three propellers.
"The location reported by the Aquitania would be a few miles northwest of the Azores where De Pinedo was last reported seen."

LISBON, Portugal, May 24.—Nation wide disappointment was felt throughout Portugal today over the apparent failure of Commander Francesco De Pinedo to hop over the Atlantic ocean in a non-stop flight to the Azores.

It had been reported that a schooner was towing an airplane believed to be De Pinedo's into port at Horta, Azores Islands, but no confirmation of this report has been received up to the time this dispatch was written.

The Italian legation at Horta sent word that a large crowd spent the entire night upon the harbor front waiting for De Pinedo, hoping that he might fly into the city. Flares were lighted upon the water front to guide the Italian airman if he was still aloft.

De Pinedo left Tupassee, Newfoundland early yesterday morning.

Although Commander De Pinedo was due in the Azores at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, New York standard time, it is believed that if he was forced down, he is safe for his plane was such that it would be able to remain aloft for a very considerable time even in fairly heavy seas.

Wireless reports had been received during the afternoon which indicated that De Pinedo had made great headway and was less than 300 miles off the Azores when last reported sighted in the air.

Commander De Pinedo's four continent flight started from Cagliari, Sardinia, on February 13. On February 22, he flew from the Cape Verde Island to Fernando de Noronha off the coast of Brazil. He then continued his flight through South America and arrived in New Orleans on March 29. Flying to the Pacific coast his plane was burned up while anchored at Roosevelt Dam, Ariz., on April 5, a new plane was sent to him from Italy and he flew it from New York to Florida and thence to Chicago and Canada and Newfoundland, hopping off for the Azores early yesterday morning.

ROME, May 24.—Premier Mussolini today ordered Italian cruisers out to search for Commander De Pinedo, "The Flying Fascist," who is overdue on a hop from Newfoundland to the Azores.

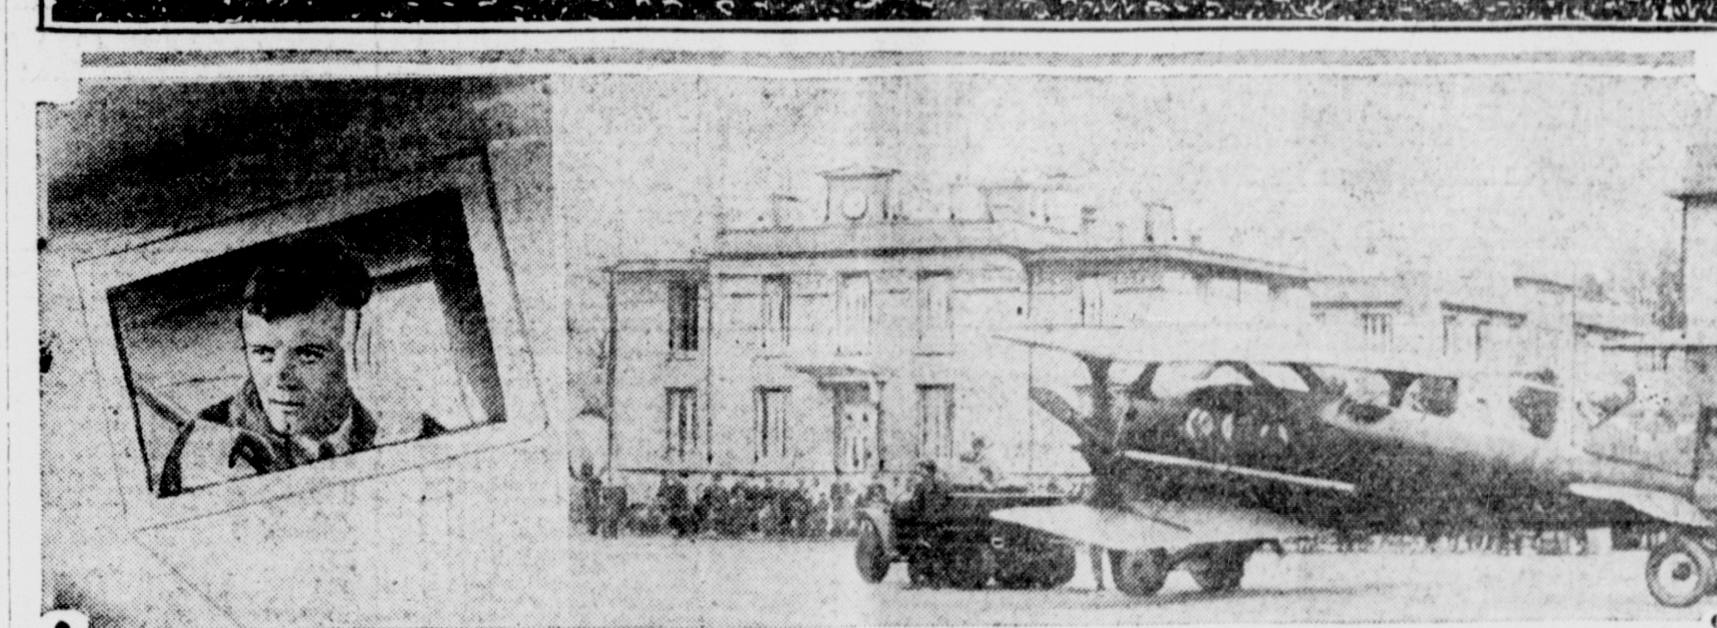

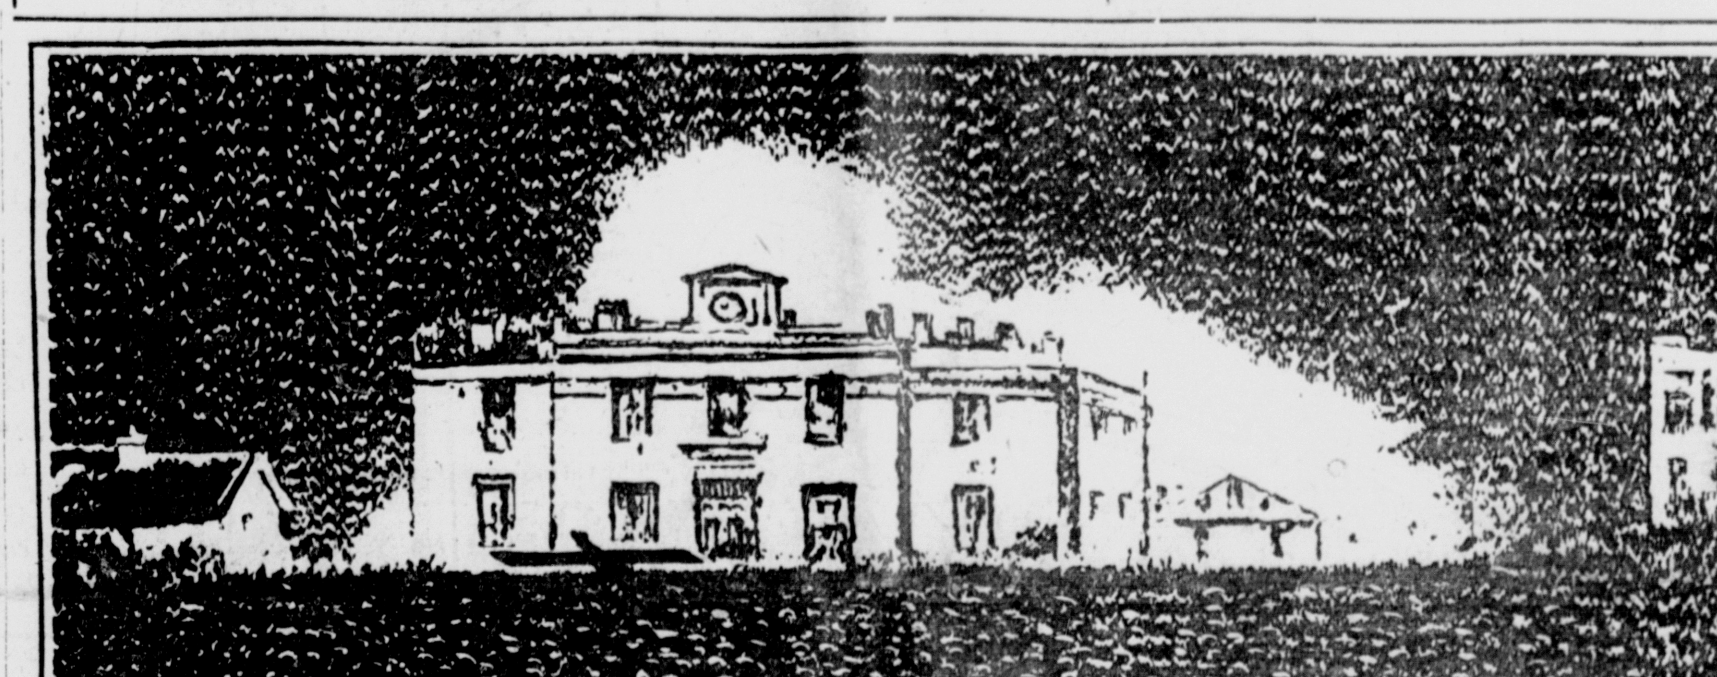

Instructions were also sent to Italian liners at sea to conduct a search along the route De Pinedo was to have taken.

At the air ministry the belief is held that Commander De Pinedo was unable to locate the Azores, on account of the mist or rain, and was forced down at sea.

HORTA, The Azores, May 24.—No news of Commander De Pinedo had been received here this morning. There was rain and mist during the night, but it is now calm and clear.

"HELLO 'SLIM'! HOW'S EVERYTHING ALONG BROADWAY?"

At the top is the first picture to record the arrival of Charles Lindbergh in Paris. It was carried by plane to London, radioed to New York and sent here by fast train. It shows the hotel at Le Bourget aerodrome, bathed by searchlight and surrounded by a milling crowd fighting to glimpse the American aviator. His plane may be seen silhouetted against the building. Under this telephoto picture is a view of Lindbergh shortly before he took off and a daylight picture of the hotel a few days before Lindbergh arrived. The plane in the latter picture is a Berliot-Spad, one of those that went up to greet him. Below is shown Lindbergh being greeted on his arrival in Paris by U. S. Ambassador Myron T. Herrick. The picture was sent by cable directly from Paris then by telephoto special to The Evening Gazette and The Morning Republic.

PRINCESS IS GIVEN DECREE FROM FIFTH

PARIS, May 24.—The Princess Gallitzine has been granted a divorce by the Seine tribunal from Prince Gallitzine, her fifth husband.

Grounds for the divorce were first "the injurious attitude of the husband" and secondly because of the alleged misconduct of the husband.

The Princess Gallitzine was formerly Almee Crocker Gouraud of California.

Thousands of letters and telegrams have been received from all parts of the world at the governor's office urging such procedure.

The governor cannot delegate his authority and the law provides that the decision must be made by him, the chief executive wrote the defense committee.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. S. B. LE SOURD HERE TUESDAY MORNING

Mrs. S. B. Le Sourd, 71, prominent Xenia woman, passed away Tuesday morning at 6:50 o'clock at her home on E. Second St., following an illness of less than four days from cerebral hemorrhage. She was at lunch at noon Friday when she was suddenly stricken. Her condition was critical from the first and Sunday night she lapsed into an unconscious state from which she failed to rally. She had been in apparently normal health and her death, terminating the short illness, is a sad shock to her family and friends.

Mrs. Le Sourd, who was before marriage Miss Ida May Stewart, was the daughter of Judge and Mrs. James M. Stewart. She was born August 5, 1855 on a farm in Clark County but her girlhood was spent in the vicinity of Yellow Springs. She was a student at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, and later took a course in music in the Xenia Conservatory of Music.

Her marriage to S. B. Le Sourd took place March 20, 1876 at the old Jacoby homestead on the Springfield Pike. Following her marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Le Sourd made their home for two and one half years in Bethany, Butler County, and removed from there to Xenia in the fall of 1878, when Mr. Le Sourd became engaged in the insurance business in this city. The celebration of their golden wedding, which took place March 30, 1926, was an occasion of great happiness for Mr. and Mrs. Le Sourd and their large circle of relatives and friends. Mr. Le Sourd's death occurred June 29, 1926.

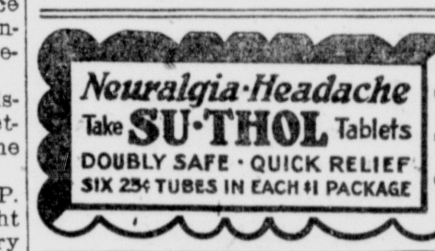

Mrs. Le Sourd was a member of Trinity M. E. Church, forty-eight years and was prominently identified with all of its activities. She was a member of the Women's Home Missionary Society, the Ladies' Aid and other organizations of the church. She was a devoted wife and mother and her home was always a center of happy home and social life.

Mrs. Le Sourd was the mother of five children three of whom survive her. They are Harry Le Sourd secretary of the Home Building and Savings Co., and member of the firm of S. B. Le Sourd and Co., Mrs. Milton McKay, of this city, and Mrs. Frank Dubois, of Warren, Pa. Two daughters, Gertrude and Mabel, died in early childhood. She also leaves six grandchildren, William, Richard and Helen Le Sourd, Eleanor and Margaret McKay, of this city, and John Dubois, of Warren, Pa.

The only surviving member of Mrs. Le Sourd's father's family is her sister, Mrs. Lella A. Cooley, E. Second St. A niece, Mrs. Laura Alexander, has made her home with Mrs. Le Sourd for the last fourteen years.

Funeral services will be held at the Le Sourd home Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. Burial will be made in Woodland Cemetery.

Modern mothers wisely plan child meals for GROWTH

Letting children have the heavy meals planned for grown-ups is not the modern mother's way. For now it is known that the early years have special needs—and normal growth takes place only when certain important essentials are planned for, and provided.

A bowl of Mother's Oats with a cup of milk supplies nearly one-fourth of the growing child's requirement for the muscle-and-tissue building substance called protein.

Mother's Oats is approved by nutrition experts for another highly important reason: it is a whole-grain food!

And how good it tastes! Always smooth and even-textured, always rich with the flavor only whole-grain foods have! For it is milled with painstaking care by millers who have had 50 years of experience.

Two kinds—the kind you have always known or Quick (cooks in 2½ to 5 minutes). Both with complete interchangeable with Aunt Jemima's, good for genuine Tudor Silverware, or other hand-some premiums.

HEALTH LESSONS TO ADD YEARS TO LIFE OF CHILDREN NOW

CLEVELAND, O., May 24.—Health instruction and physical exercise which have been made a part of present-day public school courses will enable the children of today to live approximately ten years longer than their parents.

This is the opinion of Dr. C. E. Turner, of Boston, following a survey in the schools here. Proper dieting and scientific physical development tend to iron out defects, particularly when applied to children, who bodies are still in the plastic stage, he pointed out.

"Ten years can be added to the lives of boys and girls of today through scientific health education in the schools and co-operation in the homes," Dr. Turner declared.

BIBLE THOUGHT

FOLIAGE AND FRUIT—I am like a green olive tree in the house of God: I trust in the mercy of God for ever and ever, I will praise thee for ever, because thou hast done it: and I will wait on thy name, Psalm 52:8, 9.

"BIG SHOW" FOR 1928

A number of cities are making strenuous efforts to obtain the Republican or Democratic national conventions next year and continue to present their claims to party leaders in one form or another. It is conceded that in public interest nothing approaches the proceedings of the bodies which place in nomination the four citizens who seek the highest offices in the gift of the American people.

Chicago is in the lists, as are Omaha, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Cleveland and Detroit, and each is driving hard to land the "big shows" of 1928. It is the "go getters" of the highest type to which the task has been assigned by each city, and members of the national committees of each great party are being made acquainted with the reasons why this or that city is better equipped than any other in the country to entertain the delegates and alternates, party leaders and party workers.

Cleveland, San Francisco, Chicago, Denver, Kansas City, St. Louis, Minneapolis tell what they have done in the way of playing host to the chiefs of the political parties. Detroit and Omaha with their records of conventions, other than a major national political gathering, present them and state what they are equipped to do on behalf of Republicans and Democrats. New York City does not appear to be an aspirant. It had the gathering that nominated Seymour and Blair in 1868 and the convention that nominated Davis and Bryan three years ago, and the metropolis seems to be content, for at least a while, to let other municipalities seek the honor.

WORK, NOT INSPIRATION

Irvin S. Cobb, whose humorous writing have been sending ripples of chuckles across America for a generation, has a grouch.

It is the modern young writer, who is impatient of sound literary training and who persists in his belief that the literary light is impelled by that elusive quality called inspiration.

Mr. Cobb unburies himself this wise:

"The two biggest fools in the writing game are the rebel, the iconoclast, the fiery spirit, the free and untrammelled soul who won't learn the rules that have been proved sound by generations of writers in the past; and the man who, having learned them, won't break them occasionally."

"But you can't break the rules intelligently without mastering them first, and knowing exactly when and why and how they should be broken to get a particular effect."

As to waiting for inspiration to guide the fingers over the typewriter keyboard, Mr. Cobb is very emphatic. "I never had an inspiration in my life," he declares. "I keep regular office hours for writing, and what I get are not inspirations but notions for yarns."

NOT SO VERY NEW

At the recent convention of the Missouri Hygiene Society held in St. Louis, the "fourteen points" necessary to secure mental health were emphasized by medical and biological. These points are as follows:

Direct the will, establish right habits, be calm, use self control, cultivate purposeful activity, be truthful, strive for self-realization, let day-dreams be purposeful, cultivate confidence, properly apportion work and play stress the good done rather than the bad, live one day at a time, be consistent, face the facts frankly.

But with all due respect, is not this advice just about as old as the very hills?

How to Achieve Beauty

KEEP THE TEXTURE OF YOUR HANDS SOFT AND WHITE

Yesterday I talked about hand beauty in general, and today I want to give you some helpful suggestions for keeping your hands and arms soft and white. This is of particular importance just at this time, when spring with its warm sun and showers is well advanced, and the summer season is just beginning. When one goes gloveless so often as possible while in season, much and when taking a fully ripened cucumber and cut it lengthwise in halves and rub it well over the hands. You will really be very much pleased with the results, especially if your hands show any tendency toward discoloration.

Hand texture that has become slightly roughened is oftentimes caused by the failure to dry the hands thoroughly. It is therefore very important to dry the hands well and to apply whenever possible a little of your favorite hand lotion.

Continued hard use of the hands will make them callous. For hands that are in this state, good though honest, cucumber or the odor more pleasing add a little orris root to the tallow after you have rendered it and before it cools. Olive oil rubbed into the hands and arms will keep the skin texture soft. Glycerine and rose water are also soothing for roughened hands and arms.

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C. KELLY

ONE KIND OF MERIT TEST

I was in the office of a theatrical producer talking about plays of past and present and something was said about a comedy he had sponsored two or three seasons ago.

"Was it a good play?" I asked. His reply was to press a button which rang a bell and summoned his secretary. He bade her bring certain records relating to the play mentioned.

"After carefully looking over these papers," he said: "Yes, it was a good play—a very good play. We did about $28,000 a week gross."

What I had been wondering was whether the play was a well-constructed piece of playwriting with essential elements of conflict, suspense, character-drawing, wit and truth.

But my friend, the producer, was looking from another viewpoint and little suspected that there was anything humorous about his reply. He, like nearly all theatrical producers, measures merit by results at the box office. If a play brings home the bacon it is an artistic triumph, a successful play, a good play.

Now, while we may laugh at a theatrical man for using dollars as a sole test of merit in a play, we probably fail to giggle at ourselves every day measuring success only by earning power. I have in mind an inventor who has never made much money—simply because he would rather start on something new in his laboratory than to bother about introducing to the public useful devices already completed. He derives more pleasure from his work itself than from the money his inventions might earn.

Yesterday I talked to a famous economist who has been uncannily accurate in predicting price movements in stocks and bonds. "You must have made a fortune," he suggested. "No," he replied, with a smile. "I'm probably crazy but I'd rather predict the market than to play it." He becomes so interested in his work that he forgets all about the money-making possibilities of the knowledge of gains.

Is his life a failure? I suggested. "No," he replied, with a smile. "I'm probably crazy but I'd rather predict the market than to play it." He becomes so interested in his work that he forgets all about the money-making possibilities of the knowledge of gains.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

PECAN CINNAMON ROLLS

One pint milk, half cup butter, three-fourths cup sugar, two eggs, one yeast cake, flour, one teaspoon salt, two cups brown sugar, two tablespoons cinnamon, one-third cup butter, one-third cup water, half cup pecan nuts, chopped. Scald the milk, add fat and sugar. Pour the mixture into a bowl, add two well-beaten eggs and enough flour to make a sponge. Crumb the yeast and put into a cup with one-half cup luke warm water. When the sponge is luke warm add the yeast to it; let rise, beat down, let rise again, beat down, and add enough flour to knead, let rise.

Mix the brown sugar, cinnamon, butter and water, and heat until the sugar is dissolved. Cool mixture. When the dough is very light roll it out to one-half inch thickness, spread with the cooled sugar mixture and sprinkle with the nuts. Roll the dough as for a jelly roll and cut one-inch slices. Place slices with cut edge on bottom of well-oiled muffin pan; let rise and bake in a moderate oven thirty minutes. This makes three dozen rolls.

Keeping HEALTHY by Dr. A. F. Currier

ALLEGED DISCOVERY OF A NEW SUBSTANCE FOR GENERAL ANESTHESIA

Announcement comes from Berlin that a Professor Unger has recently described to the Berlin Medical Society a substance for general anesthesia which he calls E. 107 and which is said to be an improvement upon either a chloroform or a general anesthetic.

This substance is said to be a combination of bromine and alcohol and is used by injection into the rectum and not by inhalation. It had been used in 500 cases at the time his report was made and with results which were said to be encouraging.

It was affirmed that its advantages over anesthesia by inhalation were first, that the patient's heart action and blood pressure remained unchanged; second, that there was no fever after its use as there was after the administration of ether; third, that it obviated the use of a mask in its administration and thus facilitated operations on the head, face and neck.

It was admitted as an objection that it caused irritation of the mucous membrane and that certain problems not mentioned would have to be overcome before the substance and the method could be considered a complete success.

It is not at all unlikely that it will continue to fall short of a complete or anything like a complete success, and if the reports as stated in the communication quoted from are correct I do not see any reason why it should not remain permanently unsuccessful.

Either anesthesia, when the administration is by a careful and skillful anesthetist, is seldom followed by any of the objections mentioned in this article. If the method of inhalation were to be chosen in producing general anesthesia there has never been a time when it could be produced so safely and satisfactorily as at the present.

But the tendency among up-to-date surgeons at the present time is away from general, and in favor of local anesthesia. Even the most serious major operations are now done painlessly and with great rapidity and consequently with a minimum of shock, under local anesthesia, and it is this variety which should be encouraged and perfected other than the method of general anesthesia by inhalation. Furthermore anesthesia by rectum is not at all a new thing. It has been tried in past years by many surgeons and abandoned because of its irritating action on the intestinal mucous membrane.

It is doubtful whether this can be overcome, at least by any combination of bromine and alcohol, but even if it could, what would be the use of it when compared with the immense advantages of local anesthesia and its superiority to any other method, at least for the great majority of the operations which are performed by the surgeons?

Mrs. R. P.: My 14 months old boy began to walk three weeks ago and I noticed that he was bowlegged and fell down if he was not supported so that I had to get a baby walker for him. Is there any way of curing this deformity?

Answer—Now is the time to correct this deformity. Take him to a good orthopedic surgeon, and have proper braces adjusted for him. This, with suitable diet, will cure him and you must not delay to give him this attention.

Acid Stomach

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly. For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. In every section, wet, dry, north, south, east and west, are remembering the simple fact that the laws of the United States are made by congress and not by the candidate for president nor the president himself.—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Many Minds SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"It's the philanthropists who make all the mischief. There are some people who think nobody should be punished. And law enforcement is important, too."—Judge Samuel Uley.

"Care for the child and anticipate the cure of the criminal. It is better by far to look forward with the child than backward with the criminal."—Very Rev. Peter F. Cusick, S. J.

"The home is best described in terms of a garden. It is a garden that fully meets the physical, mental, moral and social needs of growing children. The training there should teach them to be independent and self-propelled. There comes a time when they have to live their own lives, and our business as fathers and mothers is to train them to be able to propel themselves in the right direction."—Willard E. Givens.

"We have been living in an atmosphere of irresponsibility—shown in our attitude toward marriage, divorce, the rearing of our children. And the ill effects are repeated in our youth. Young women of today take the attitude that the same things apply to them as to their brothers."—Mrs. J. Lester Lewine.

"Neither the most rabid New York wets, nor the wildest southern dries are utter fools. People in every section, wet, dry, north, south, east and west, are remembering the simple fact that the laws of the United States are made by congress and not by the candidate for president nor the president himself."—Franklin D. ## BOWERSVILLE WINS FROM WOODMEN IN WAYNESVILLE GAME

With the permission of the weather man to stage nine frames of ball Sunday, Bowersville put one more on the right side of the ledger, by defeating the Modern Woodmen of Dayton at Waynesville, 6 to 4.

Cox, third baseman for the Bayliffs, lead the hitting with two doubles and a single in five times up, and scoring two runs himself. Haughey and D. Murrell each got a double. Palmer, of Dayton, playing shortstop for Bowersville, was a valuable asset to the Bayliffs. His hitting and fielding was high class and his single to right in the third drove in two runs. Again in the sixth he sent one more across with a single.
Pitcher Blue hurt his arm in the second inning and was forced to retire at the end of the third. Kersey went to the mound in the fourth and pitched a nice game, allowing but two hits in five innings.
In the fifth the first two men got on, then Kersey cut loose retiring the side on strike outs. He will be retained as one of the Bayliff hurlers.
The Woodmen scored two runs in the third on five hits. In the seventh Sharp led off with a double, and a base on balls and a triple were good for two more runs. This was Kersey's only let down. Only seven men faced him in the eighth and ninth innings and he struck out four of them.
Bowersville will play at Jamestown Sunday May 29. Game called at 3 p. m. Summary:

DOES JOB HIMSELF
Harry Weber can lay claim to being the most ambitious among the rural mail carriers working out of the Xenia Post office.

Mr. Weber took it upon himself to personally paint the 154 mail boxes along his route a white color, and not only that, but also inscribed the names of the patrons on the various boxes.

Postmaster C. S. Frazer declares residents on rural routes should perform this task instead of the carriers.

DURNBAUGH STILL LEADING RESERVE ARTILLERY AT BAT

Computing all of the four games played by the Xenia Reserves this season, instead of the three league games only, terrific hitting of Durnbaugh in each of the four contests, enables the slugger outfielder to continue to set the pace among the Reserve hitters with the remarkable average of .647. Adding two more safeties Sunday, Durnbaugh has made eleven hits in seventeen times at bat and has also scored seven runs himself, more than any other individual on the team.

Reserves are hitting at the rate of .560, a wonderful team batting average, have made forty-nine hits, an average of twelve per game, and scored thirty-nine runs, an average of ten per game. Batting averages follow:

CONSTABLES FOUND GUILTY OF CHARGE

Constables Earl Severs and W. J. Sidwell, Dayton, known as the "raiding twins" because of their activities in liquor law enforcement, were found guilty of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act on three counts in federal court, Dayton, Monday. They will be sentenced May 31. The maximum penalty is imprisonment two years and $10,000 fine each. Both are known here, having participated in raids in Bath Twp.

QUOIT CONTEST IS WASHED OUT BY RAIN

A heavy downpour of rain that soon placed the grounds in an impossible playing condition, forced postponement of the scheduled Miami Valley Quoit League match between the Xenia Quoit Club and Shrine Club of Dayton, in Xenia Monday night.

It was the first postponement of the season due to inclement weather. The match will probably be played off sometime later in the week.

Several of the Dayton players appeared on the grounds, having not been previously notified the match had been cancelled.

JURY CONSIDERS FATE OF FILM HERO

LOS ANGELES, May 24.—A jury of eight women and four men today faced the task of deciding whether Paul Kelly is guilty of murder. The strapping film hero, who is accused of having used his brawny knuckles to kill Raymond, musical comedy star, may see the scales turn today.

Superior Judge Charles S. Burrell has prepared his charge for reading when the trial resumes this morning. The case will then go to the jury.

POSTMASTER ENDS ANNUAL SURVEY OF RURAL POST ROUTES

Postmaster C. S. Frazer recently completed his semi-annual survey of the 1,304 letter boxes along the eight rural mail routes over the county, taking several weeks to complete the task.

Under an order which went into effect February 15, the number of rural routes was reduced from ten to eight for purposes of economy, cutting the total mileage to 269.15 miles.

All boxes were found by the postmaster to be generally in good condition. The total number of rural boxes serve 1,355 families and 5,553 individual patrons, he says.

Postmaster Frazer also noted on his inspection trip that the roads along the designated routes were also in good shape except in scattered spots.

The shortest rural route in the county is 26.6 miles long and the longest is 39.6 miles in length.

SIXTEEN VETERANS HONORED BY ROTARY

Sixteen of the twenty-one veterans of the Civil War in the county, were guests of the Xenia Rotary Club, at the luncheon meeting at the Elks' Club, Tuesday.

The aged veterans were graciously entertained by the club members and at the close of the luncheon, F. L. Smith, president of the Rotarians, delivered an appropriate address to the veterans.

They were escorted by their hosts to the O. S. and S. O. Home where the battalion staged a dress parade in their honor.

FEW CHANGES ANNOUNCED IN FACULTIES OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS

An unusually low percentage of changes in the personnel of the teaching staffs of Xenia public schools is necessary for next year, according to the revised teacher lists prepared by Harper C. Pendry, superintendent.

Indicative of the few removals is the condition at Central High School where only one faculty change has been announced for next year. Miss Alice Neff, teacher of social science, has resigned to accept another position.

Marriage cut the biggest swathe in the ranks of the teachers for the term just closing, several dropping their teaching careers at the end of this school term because of marriages during the school year.

Resignations have been received from Miss Mary Clippard, Spring Hill, first grade; Mrs. Esther Welch Keenan, Spring Hill, second grade; Miss Corinne Welch, Spring Hill, third grade; Mrs. Evelyn McGivern Smith, Opportunity School principal; Miss Sarah Seifert, McKinley School; Mrs. Elizabeth Tobin Jeffries, McKinley and Miss Neff, Mrs. Florence McKee, a teacher for forty-seven years, is resigning from the faculty of McKinley where she has been teaching English, to retire from active teaching.

New teachers named include: Miss Harriet Keller, who will begin her first year of teaching; Mrs. Helen Smith Spahr, a former teacher; Miss Catherine Jacobs, who has been teaching at Osborn; Miss Emma Glass, who has been teaching at Bowersville and Mrs. Nybladh. There are sixty-three teachers on the faculties of the different schools. The complete list follows:

Central: Spencer Shank, principal; Miss Fannie K. Haynes, Miss Roxie Channell, Miss Zella Clark, Miss Margaret Ballantyne, Mrs. Pearl Wolf, Miss Clara Martin, Mrs. Martha Bell, Miss Lois Grigsby, John Ballantyne, Miss Olive Allen, Mrs. Rachel Dean, Eugene Whitworth, Mrs. Olive T. Nybladh, T. Victor Kolb, Byron P. Cranor, Miss Zella Carpenter, H. G. Patterson, Carl Benner, Miss Faye Cavanaugh, Robert Haws and Miss May M. Harper.

HERE'S A HOT SKETCH!

LOWELL, Mass.—The Malta Club threw a dance and Herbert Merrill was to play the cornet. He arrived in his Ford roadster, carefully parking his car the correct number of feet from a fire-plug. He carelessly flicked his cigarette butt into the air (it fell to earth, he knew not where) as he hurried into the hall. Three quarters of an hour later someone informed the musician that his car was smoking and the dancers had an impromptu intermission while Mr. Merrill visited the firehouse with his Ford. An extinguisher was used to put out the smoldering seat. The cigarette butt had fallen, not out of the car, but in.

The Rovin' Ritzies

By Flo Frederick

Though They Plan to Surprise—
They End With Battered Eyes.
Why it was that the Ritzie club members did not realize that they were surrounded until it was too late, no one could exactly tell. They had all been interested in a bird-house that Marty was making and for some reason had not heard the kids on the outside.

Rag was the first to sense trouble in the air and stepping to the porthole of the carpenter shop door took a peep outside. What he saw was enough to disturb any strong-hearted Ritzie.

Practically every boy in the neighborhood, who had not been admitted to the Ritzie club, was there in the yard. Rag saw in a flash what they were up to. They were after the Ritzie flag that was flying from its flagpole over the garage roof.

Though it had been a desire for battle that had inspired the boys of the Ritzie club to hoist a flag over the carpenter shop, Rag did realize the idea of a fray at a particular moment. With ten mischievous boys to defend the fort, things did not look so bright for the Ritzies.

Rag tipped back to the corner of the shop where the rest of the Ritzies were still working over the happening. Marty had climbed the loft ladder and disappeared.

Marty's carpenter shop was built in the corner of his father's garage, which had once been an old barn. It still had a loft door on the front. Marty found his way through the dark loft to the door and opened it just enough to let the folded scraps of paper slip through and flutter to the ground.

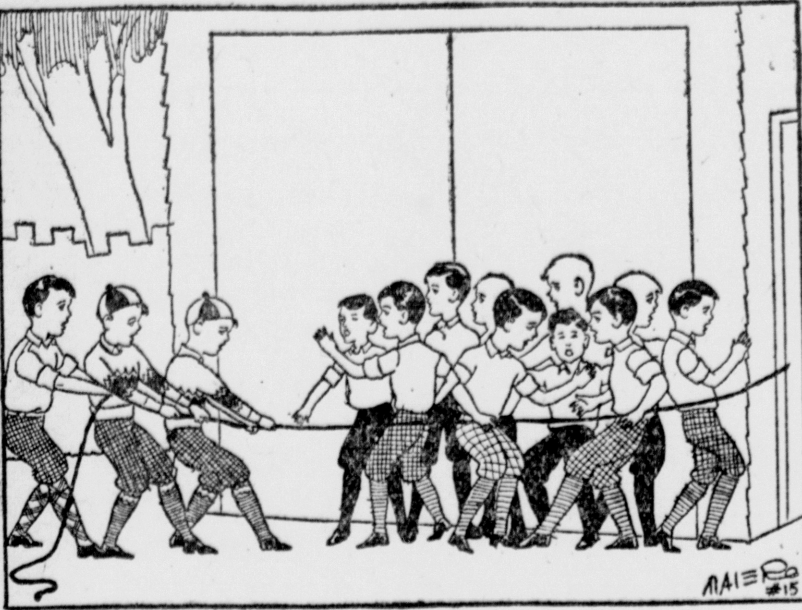

A cry from outside told that his trick had worked. The enemy, seeing the scraps of paper floating through the air, made a dash for them, thinking to discover some of the Ritzies' secrets.

Hurrying down from the loft, Marty grabbed the piece of rope that the twins had tied to a beam beside the door.

"Quick, fellows! We'll tie them up with this rope while they're busy with the papers."

Dashing out of the shop at top speed, Marty and the twins encircled the group of boys who were still puzzling over the messages, and tied them up before they knew what was happening.

The sudden appearance of the Ritzies had turned them into stone. This was uncanny. They had thought the shop was deserted. When they had at last gained their senses, they found themselves

What man today hasn't heard of Clara Bow and how many of them are not aware of the fact that she has "It" whatever it is. The amount of "it" that a screen actress has is best gauged by the number of men who buy tickets. But there are different kinds of "it." Alma Rubens has a great appeal as has Pola Negri, but it is a different appeal, I am told that Clara Bow appears in pictures without make-up and I have no reason to doubt this since I have seen her working without the artificial get-up usually required.

With the growth and advancement of film making the art of make-up for the screen has really become a science. James Collins, director of the make-up department of the Paramount studios at Hollywood, who has been "making over" faces for more than fifteen years has turned his department into a laboratory where even scientific terms are used. Recently he announced a new discovery which he calls "facial geometry." It is really a development more than a discovery.

Collins, naturally, would not detail his process, but he did tell how a geometrical line of purple paint would make a round jaw photograph square, thus making a weak face strong. A small red triangle, for instance, on the lids will arch

While on the subject of make-up, it is a curious fact and when a foreigner comes to America the first comment is about our beautiful girls. Emil Jannings, famous German character actor, now completing his first American film, recently observed that the reason American girls were the most beautiful in the world was because they understood the art of make-up. "It's very simple," he said, "American women always keep a powder puff handy, realizing that powder keeps the face clean-looking and smooth."

It is our own impression that the best "make-up" women are in New York, but the prettiest, naturally, are found in Southern California. But that is an endless discussion.

ways been held to bind all the men and women who visit the White

House for news purposes. Yet it commonly happens that official silence on a given subject is more golden, from a "news" standpoint, than discussion of it might be. It is on such occasions that some of the correspondents feel themselves entitled to print exactly what happened. They do not admit that in doing so, they are guilty of any breach of faith or violation of the rules. They contend that they are not misquoting anybody, but merely confining themselves to a legitimate statement of facts. Frequently they are carrying out specific orders, known in the profession as "queries," from their home offices.

Difficult to Quote Authority

The present tempest in the journalistic teapot probably will subside without casualties on either side, as other storms of the kind during the Coolidge administration have blown over. But the newest incident undoubtedly adds something to the dissatisfaction which periodically crops up among reporters of White House news. In just what form or language, for example, officially communicated information is now to be used, has once again become a moot question. About a month ago newspapers throughout the country reported the official demise of the ad character known as "the White House spokesman." A few Washington correspondents have revived that "spokesman" and quote him indirectly, as before. But for the most part that description of the executive oracle has been dropped. Meantime capital scribes are in a quandary just how to identify, as they feel it necessary to do, the source of administration news. Such hackneyed phrases as "well-informed circles," "official quarters," "a high government authority," etc., do not, in the opinion of experienced Washington writers, fill the bill. Such expressions too often in the past were the cloaks under which unauthorized and inaccurate federal information reached the American public.

Coolidge insists on Anonymity. Ever and anon President Coolidge is urged to consider the advisability of direct quotation as the most natural and effective manner of placing himself, day by day, in communication with the country's millions of newspaper readers. But Mr. Coolidge insists that the anonymity of the White House is in the nation's interest. The majority of Washington newspapermen think the president is right in this respect. By and large, they feel that the present system is productive of copious and valuable "copy." When there is real administration news available, it's usually given out liberally. But many correspondents believe the press conference rules could be loosened up in a way that would promote their interests, while not harming those of the White House.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

Both Anne Tracy and Mr. Jones, who is the Tracys' milkman, object to the engagement of Phillip Wynne Tracy IV and Natalie Jones.

Phillip's mother plans to interest her son in other girls and decides to give him a party. She tells him about the impending visit of her old friend, Mrs. Hilliard, and arouses his interest in the woman.

After the first kiss Phillip only lives to be near Lyla Hilliard.

At the party Natalie overhears Phillip making love to Mrs. Hilliard and breaks her engagement. She refuses to be even friends and tells Rodney Maxwell all about it.

On a midnight ride Lyla confesses her love for Phillip.

He sends her a passionate love poem which his mother finds. Lyla and Mrs. Tracy have it out. The whole affair, however, ends in nothingness because war is declared.

Rod and Phillip enlist together. Natalie tells Rod she is glad he is going with Phil and breaks his heart. Lyla writes a cruel letter to Phillip and leaves without seeing him. She also says good-bye to Mrs. Tracy by letter.

Natalie visits Mrs. Tracy and Phil's mother tells her "I am sending him to war to save him for you."

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XXIII

LYLA BIDS ANNE FAREWELL
NATALIE JONES looked surprised at Mrs. Tracy's confession.

From it she knew that in some way she had learned about Wynne and Lyla, but with the reticence which women always show toward one another over those things which lie nearest to them, she asked no questions and Mrs. Tracy made no explanation. Neither did she ask her to come and see her when Wynne had gone. It seemed to the girl that she would not allow herself to think of that time. However, she kissed her tenderly as she bade her goodbye.

Natalie got out of the room as soon as possible after Mrs. Tracy kissed her. She felt the tears welling up into her eyes and was determined not to cry before Wynne's mother.

As soon as she had gone Anne Tracy rang for Nonnie, and when her maid appeared she asked, "Has Mrs. Hilliard had breakfast yet?"

"Yes, Mrs. Tracy, I think she got it downtown or on the train."

"What do you mean, Nonnie? Mrs. Hilliard has not left the house has she?"

"Yes, Mrs. Tracy. She told me to tell you that because of the declaration of war she had determined to return home immediately. She said that she knew her husband would want her with him, as he would probably wish to place his big cotton mills and their home at the disposal of the government. She particularly requested that she would make no noise to awaken you and finally gave me this note for you."

Anne Tracy took the note as though it burned her and laid it on the table.

Her maid, she knew, was very curious about what had happened, for she busied herself with little things about the house. The girl mistress said to her, "That will do Nonnie. I am going out shortly and then you can finish up here. Has Mr. Phillip gone out?"

"Yes, Mrs. Tracy."

"Well, I'll call you if I want you before I leave the house."

The moment she was alone Anne Tracy picked up Lyla Hilliard's note and read:

"I am leaving this morning, dear Anne, without seeing you."

"It is very probable that you will meet me at the house. I will be calling you 'dear Anne'."

"I want you to know, however, that in both going away without personally bidding you good-bye and calling you 'dear,' my motive is perfectly sincere."

"It would do neither of us any good for you to see me again until you had gotten over your surprised shock at my actions and until you could realize that a person might do something that would hurt another grievously and yet love her very dearly. I could never make you believe that you are really dear to me."

"It is all in the point of view, Anne, and ours are as far apart as the poles."

"You think I have scarred your son's soul. I think I have done him no harm except in leaving him."

"I am the one who suffers most, for I really care for Wynne. He is a wonderful youth—a son of whom you may be proud."

"It almost broke my heart to write him the letter. I did this morning. However, some day after the storm and stress of life which the years will bring him, he will remember it with kindness, if not

"There must be something in friendship that is greater than all this mushy love between a man and woman."

satisfaction, and in this, dear Anne, is a truth that most of us would forget if we could. 'Men remember the pleasure longer than the pleasure given.' That's not an original opinion of mine, but one that has come down the ages from a very celebrated Grecian philosopher and has been proven since by the world of men of every country and in every clime.

"The only regret that I have, Anne, is that I have, by leaving Wynne before he tired of me—for he would have tired—made him for the time being hate all women."

"Of course I shall always have a poignant sorrow—after today I will never be able to sign a letter to you 'your sincere loving friend.'"

"I can see your lips curl scornfully as you read the above, but nevertheless, dear Anne, truthfully I can still sign myself,

"Your sincere, loving friend,"

"Lyla."

ANNE HUNTINGTON TRACY quietly laid that frank letter down and wondered how there could be such women in the world—women who deceived themselves with plausible excuses.

Not for a moment did she doubt Lyla Hilliard's sincerity, but she marvelled at her perverted mind.

With a sigh she looked the letter in a private drawer in her secretary and tried to tell herself that whatever came, Lyla Hilliard would henceforth be dead to her.

Phillip had stopped next door to see Rodney.

In his own mind he had determined to say nothing about the tragic ending of his first love. But the moment Rod looked at his face he knew that something momentous had happened to his friend.

Naturally, his first thought was of Natalie, and he asked, "Have you seen Nat since you enlisted?"

"No."

"Is your mother going to give her consent to your going?"

"Of course she is."

"Well, then, what's the matter? Are you sorry you signed up?"

"Certainly not. Do you think I can change my mind as quickly and as easily as a woman?"

"If I had not enlisted yesterday I would do so today. You and I, Rod, should be thankful that we live at a time that will give us the greatest thrill that has ever come to men in any age. Men must fight to prove themselves men."

"But what of the women they leave behind?" asked Rodney, still thinking of the grief-stricken face of Natalie as he had seen it last.

"Oh, women!" answered Phillip, as if they were not worth considering. "I fancy there will always be enough males who call themselves men who will stay at home merely to console them."

"Do you think that any other man will be able to console your mother, Wynne?" asked Rodney.

Phillip's tense face broke up, its hard lines became soft and boyish. A tear rolled down his cheek.

"Mothers are different, Rod," he said. "When a woman has a baby

she is no longer a woman—she is just mother."

"Something has happened between that Hilliard woman and Phil," thought Rodney, but being a man before he was a friend, he asked no questions.

After a moment Phil said, laying his arm about Rod's shoulders, "I cannot tell you, old man, what a comfort it will be for me to know that you and I will be together. After all, Rod, there must be something in friendship that is greater than all this mushy love between a man and woman that so many people talk about as being the only thing in the world."

"If a man is sensible and uses his head a little it will not be hard for him to get the right idea of and the proper place to put woman. One man friend—a real friend like you, Rod—is worth a dozen sweethearts."

"Let them come if they want to and speed their going after you tire of their silly ways. That's the conclusion that every man must come to who is in the least experienced in the sex."

Although Rod was very sad he smiled inside of himself, for even though it had never happened to him he knew that Wynne's self-esteem had been sat upon until it was like a flat tire which was making him bump along most uncomfortably.

"My guardian was here this morning and I sketched out a plan for my will," he said.

"Good Lord, Rod, you do not expect to die at this war do you?"

"Well, thus far, Wynne, about two million men, more or less, have died. 'You're not afraid, are you, Rod?' 'I don't know yet.'"

"Well, you'd better snap out of it if you are. Don't you know that what you look forward to you get? Hold the thought of coming back. Rod, for riding up F. th avenue will be hell to me if you are not there to see the fireworks when we return."

Both boys were silent for a moment and then Phillip questioned, "I wonder if I ought to make a will?"

"I think so," answered Rodney, soberly. "You can come with me. My guardian will tell you all about it."

"Yes, that will be all O. K. I wouldn't want to hurt mother when she's been such a sport to let me go. I don't want her to think that there is the slightest danger of my not coming back."

The two boys went out together, for the moment depressed by the first great reality that had come into their carefree lives.

Notwithstanding Phillip's brave talk, death, that untoward event which is never in the thoughts of the young, now stared him in the face.

Shortly, however, among the hubbub and excitement of getting ready to leave, everything else was forgotten.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Phil and Rod are excited at their prospects. More about how their womenfolk feel about it will be related in the next installment.
